

Di Meo Vino Bianco 1993

Just released, the Di Meo 1993 Fiano is spellbinding. After spending 32 years in steel on its fine lees, it has the light golden color and uncanny freshness you expect of the most recent vintages, not from a wine going on 33. It boasts layers of complexity, delivering sensations of orange zest, lychee, flinty mineral, dried mint, crushed stone and underbrush. Bone dry and elegant, the palate boasts smoky notes and tangy salinity that add even more depth to the long finish. Shockingly vibrant and utterly stunning. Drink through 2036. Due to the extended aging before bottling, this could no longer be labeled as Fiano di Avellino, hence the Vino Bianco designation. Abv: % Kerin O'Keefe January 2026 ©kerinokeefe.com
